

Visas

Since 31 March 2009 students applying for visa to study in the UK must check that the education institution they are applying to can admit students from outside of the European Economic Area. Any person applying for visa to study in the UK must state a sponsor number on their application form in order to receive visa. Please note St. George's School of English is not currently accredited by the British Council and does not hold a sponsor number. St. George's is, however, listed on the register of Department for Innovation Universities and Skills (DIUS).

If you are a student from within the European Economic Area and wish to check that the institution you are or are going to be studying at complies with the Immigration (European Economic Area) Regulations 2006, then you can download the archived register of education and training providers \(PDF file 1.2Mb opens in a new window\) – (http://www.bia.homeoffice.gov.uk/employers/points/sponsoringmigrants/registerof_sponsors/) as last published by the Department for Innovation Universities and Skills (DIUS) on the 30 March 2009. St. George's is listed on page 177 of the document (under St. George's Clubclass. In 2010 St. George's has changed its legal name from St. George's Clubclass to St. George's School of English to commemorate its founder, Mr. M J Richardson).

It is your or your agent's responsibility to make sure that you can obtain your visa to attend your studies at St. George's School of English as we do not accept any responsibility for the success of your visa application or your application process. In accordance with the Home Office rules St. George's School of English is not authorised to offer any immigration advice on your visa application. Please ensure that you contact your Immigration office for any information you might require or visit their website for an up to date information on visa.

All bookings made to St. George's School of English comply with the same terms and conditions which are stated on our website.